

Battle Over D.C. Extra Funding Ends in Bitterness

NORTH COUNTY EDITION

THE POST

Vol. 33, No. 6 DELIVERED EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING Wednesday, February 7, 1979

By TERRY DAVENPORT
Daly City's dole-out of 1979-80 federal Housing and Community Development Act funds brought out all the city's activists Monday night. Some of the dozens of citizens who asked for a share of the $833,000 windfall addressed the City Council in modulated tones. Others took potshots at the competition and a couple threatened to jam up the funding process by legally questioning whether the city is following HCDA regulations.

It was an inevitable battle, for the council had the difficult task of whitening down requests totalling $2.1 million for the HCDA money, which is designed to foster community development in low- and middle-income areas.

At one point, Mayor William Schumacher joked that he had considered sending the city treasurer to Nevada's casinos to try to double the money.

After listening politely for four hours, the council didn't tamper much with the recommendations for funding previously made by two advisory groups: the Planning Commission and the General Plan Citizens Advisory Committee.

Council members voted to fund all nine of those recommended by both bodies plus three more, leaving five projects totally unfunded.

The biggest surprise came when the promoters of two projects that were funded tried to throw the money back at the council.

One was Eddie C. Welbon, whose youth employment project requested $46,200 and was granted $2,000 for telephone and rent expenses.

In a more raucous tone than he had used earlier in the meeting, when he read from the Bible to the council, Welbon said his organization has no money to pay for a staff and, thus, would give the money back. He termed the $2,000 "an insult to our intelligence."

City Attorney Albert Polonsky suggested Welbon poll the board of directors of his organization before rejecting the money.

Conrad Pavellas of the Anti-Crime League of Daly City, which requested $20,000 and was granted $10,000, was more succinct.

He said sarcastically, "Thanks a lot. We work our heads off and we get a kick in the teeth."

Knud Knudsen, treasurer of the Anti-Crime League, told Pavellas, "Take that back!" He said Pavellas had no right to speak for the organization.

Pavellas replied that he was speaking for himself and continued to decry the proffered sum, saying, "It's not sufficient to run our office."

Knudsen and Anti-Crime League President Daniel Gilbrech said after the meeting that they think $10,000 is enough to adequately operate their office.

The council divided up the rest of the $833,000 as follows:

Lincoln Park — $50,000 for completing this public park in the Crocker section of Daly City; $50,000 was requested.

Housing — $304,850 for housing rehabilitation, handyman and self-help house painting programs in the city's oldest section; $370,000 was requested.

Hillside Park — $32,000 to continue work on this park in the Blossom Valley area; $182,000 was requested.

Multi-Purpose Center — $93,000 for development of a community meeting center on Mission Street which will be slightly smaller than previously planned; $308,700 was requested.

Economic Development — $125,000 for redevelopment along Mission Street and Junipero Serra Boulevard; $250,000 was requested.

Guadalupe Health Center — $25,000 for improvements to this community medical facility; $40,000 was requested.

Bayshore Improvements — $85,000 for storm drains and litter programs in the Bayshore district; $85,000 was requested.

Crocker Improvements — $78,650

His Big 'STOP' Signal Means Business

The driver of the vintage Chevrolet heading down Eastmoor Avenue in Daly City instinctively began to brake as he neared Mirada Drive.

Sure enough, there was Peter Papia, 73, parting the waves of traffic with his red "STOP" placard—so a little girl could skip safely through the crosswalk to the other side.

Not that Papia is easy to miss. Dressed in a police-style hat, flip-up sunglasses, day-glo orange vest and red, white and blue striped jogging pants, Papia is a Daly City landmark.

On chilly mornings, he wears four sweaters and jackets, wraps a white terry cloth towel around his neck and wears rubber rain shoes over his white tennis shoes—even when it's sunny.

"They keep my feet warmer," he explains.

Wearing so many layers of clothing on his torso, Papia looks like a proud papa rooster puffing out his chest as he struts back and forth between the painted white lines.

Beginning every weekday at 7:35 a.m., you'll find him at the corner of Eastmoor and Mirada, escorting flocks of children across the street to M. Pauline Brown School, offering a "good morning" to neighbors and waving at familiar faces in cars.

The weather is not a factor. "Rain, shine or snow, those kids gotta be crossed safely," he says.

The only thing he does differently when it's particularly cold, he says, is to "walk faster!"

Although he's only been a Daly City crossing guard for a year, Papia already has the job down pat.

"See that car there?" he points. "Now I can tell just by looking at him that he's not going to stop. After a while you get this sixth sense."

He knows by experience that some of the drivers traveling up the hills will try to cut around one another at the stop sign.

The hardest part of the job is trying to keep track of children darting in three directions at once. Papia says the secret is to teach the kids how to cross. They know now that they have to wait their turn to be escorted safely across the street.

Papia takes no chances with the little ones, grabbing them by the hand and walking them clear across the street.

"Sure, I nod to the folks who pass by, but when I'm crossing I see nothing but the crosswalk and I for improvements to Irvington Street in the Crocker area; $218,650 was requested.

Tot Lot — $25,000 to improve the John Daly Tot Lot; $75,000 was requested.
Senior Dancing — $2,500 for recreational dancing for seniors; $2,500 was requested.
The three projects which the Planning Commission and the Citizens Advisory Committee recommended not be funded but which the council chose to fund are the tot lot, the dance program and Welbon's youth employment program.
Projects not funded were a day-care center called the Daly City Community for Children's Services, which requested $47,983; a city water main improvement project estimated at $44,500; a $100,000 subsidized housing project; a $60,000 request by the city for pedestrian improvements around the Bay Area Rapid Transit District station; and $182,200 for the Crocker Neighborhood Association.
The Crocker Neighborhood Association was the loudest residents' group of those that battled for the booty.
Led by the Rev. Jack Duffey, the association said it needed the $182,200 for a myriad of improvements to the Crocker area, including recreational facilities, child care, an employment service, a new local general plan and additional medical care.

Duffey said 90 percent of the money would be spent on salaries of persons trained to assess the neighborhood's needs.
Schumacher suggested to Duffey that it might be better to spend the money on concrete projects rather than on grand plans.
But when Duffey insisted that planning is necessary first, Councilman Victor Kyriakis said impatiently, "A lot of what you're speaking of tonight has already been addressed."
Kyriakis won a round of applause when he said, "We have groups that have been genuinely interested in all the issues you have been addressing. I cannot discount their work."
In a letter to the council sent prior to the meeting, Duffey warned that his association would be forced to take legal steps if the council did not refer the subject of HCDA funding back to committees for further study.
Representing the Original Daly City Protective Association, Tom Adams of the Legal Aid Society told the council he, too, might have to take legal action against the city on behalf of his client.
Like Duffey, Adams said the city neglected to obtain enough feedback from the target neighborhoods that HCDA funds are designed to help

Consolidation Plan Under Fire

By RICK SULLIVAN

A bill has been introduced in the state Legislature that would make it mandatory for local government to encourage consolidation of cities, special districts and even counties or forfeit millions of dollars in state funds.
The legislation, authored by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, would order, for example, contiguous cities such as Burlingame and Millbrae or San Carlos and Belmont to put consolidation to a vote of the electorate.
If the cities refused to sanction a ballot measure under orders by the county Local Agency Formation Commission, the bill provides that those cities would lose their share of the countywide property tax levy and all Proposition 13 bailout funds.
In other words, cities, counties and special districts which fail to demonstrate any willingness to consolidate would be given virtually no funds to operate.
"It's apparent that we have too many special districts, cities and counties. Local government is very expensive and much of it unnecessary," Knox said.
"I'd like to see a very stern hand at the helm of the state steering local government in a direction that would make it more efficient."

Regarding his proposal to withhold state funds, the assemblyman commented, "I figure at a time when we are handing out this money we might make it conditional."
San Bruno Councilman Gary Mondrans offered a reply that succinctly sums up the feelings of his fellow local officials:
"I can't believe this is for real. It's out and out blackmail."
The proposed legislation, AB 287 — co-sponsored by Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco — is awaiting a hearing before the Committee on Local Government.
Knox said he expects the bill to undergo a "great deal of amendment" in committee, but he predicted:
"With the enactment of Proposition 13, I think the bill has a very excellent chance of passing."
Such a bold prediction by the outspoken advocate of regional government is not without some foundation.
The language of the bill corresponds with views on consolidation expressed by the Post Commission on Government Reform. And it parallels comments made by Gov. Brown and Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, D-San Francisco, who have noted the high cost of local government agencies.

AB 287 would allow LAFCOs to initiate their own proposals to restructure governing entities.
Knox said that as the bill meanders through four committees before being presented on the Assembly floor, he might suggest that some other local agency besides LAFCO make the judgment on which local entities should be consolidated.
But he expressed hope that some form of his bill would be passed by June 30, the end of the fiscal year.
Local reaction to the bill was predictable. It ranged from indignation to outrage.
San Mateo Mayor Jane Baker called the bill "yet another attempt by Sacramento to take local control away from the people."
And she added, "We (council members) know the feelings of the majority of the people we represent. They don't want city consolidation. Why should we be forced to spend $30,000 to $40,000 on an election when we already know what the outcome would be?"
"My sentiments exactly," offered County Supervisor Bill Royer.

D.C. Okays New Police Pact as Is

Although Daly City's police officers and sergeants complained last week about the terms of their new contract, the City Council unanimously approved the agreement Monday night.
The contract, which is effective to July 1, 1978 through June 30, 1979, provides the officers and sergeants with:
• A 2 percent salary increase and an increase in rank differential from 12.96 percent to 15 percent, provided that such increases are lawful. (If the courts determine them to be unlawful, the money will be set aside and redistributed within other fringe benefit areas.)

• A $10 per month increase in the monthly amount the city pays for health insurance premiums.
• A $25 increase in the annual uniform allowance the city gives each policeman.
• A $3.50 increase in the monthly cost of dental insurance the city pays.
• A limit of 50 hours of overtime that officers may accumulate before converting that time to pay.
• That the city will pay $15.75 every two weeks toward each employee's retirement contribution;

• That overtime due to court appearances will be paid at time-and-one-half, with a minimum of two hours at time-and-one-half.
The officers wanted the city to pay an amount equivalent to a 5-1/2 percent salary increase toward their retirement contributions.
They also sought an 18 percent increase in rank differential pay, an overtime limit of at least 80 hours and discontinuance of a policy which requires them to be on duty 42-1/2 hours per week while receiving straight pay for only 37-1/2 hours and one-half of 1 percent of their annual salaries for being on call during their daily half-hour lunch breaks.

S.S.F. City Council in Reversal

There will be no reorganization of the South San Francisco Fire Department after all.

When the City Council met in a special session Monday to discuss how to carry out reorganization of the top administrative positions, it instead decided to abandon those plans.

Three weeks ago the council on a split vote decided to re-arrange the top administrative positions by creating the new position of division chief.
At the administrative level below that, another new position of platoon chief was created — a position similar to the battalion chief currently in operation.
The unanimous decision to reject reorganization came after Fire Chief Derk Zylker told the council that a new test would have to be given to fill any of the positions.
He said that men who are battalion chiefs, for example, would not automatically move into the new position of division chief.
This comment angered Councilman Ron Acosta, who has been the council's biggest proponent of reorganization.
"This was not my idea, to create turmoil," said

Acosta, a former fireman.
He said Tuesday that when he proposed reorganization, his intention was that battalion chiefs would move automatically into the division chief position without having to be tested.
Councilman Emanuele DaMonte also said Tuesday that he changed his vote because the department was not satisfied with reorganization.
"I didn't realize the chief would have so much of a problem initiating a change," he said.
The other council member changing his vote, Mayor William Borba, said later, "They had four (votes) already so I thought I might as well go with the trend."
Councilman Terry Mirri, who along with Councilwoman Roberta Teglia has supported keeping the traditional organizational model now used in the department, said the fact that reorganization discussions have been going on for nine months indicates a lack of support.

think nothing but safety. Sociability goes out the window."

Pedestrians of all ages get the full treatment: Papia sprints out in front of cars for them with the zeal of a quarterback.
The spry, white-haired gentleman also is a terror on the tennis courts. In fact, he is a recreation supervisor at the Margate tennis courts.
Unlike some crossing guards who just hold up their flags from the curb-side, he points out, "I walk 'em all the way."
And Papia gives service with a smile, including directions to bewildered motorists and a joke here and there.
A Daly City resident for the past 30 years, Papia says watching out for safety comes to him naturally because of his previous experience in San Francisco as a construction engineer with the Department of Public Works and, until he retired recently, as an assistant civil engineer with the Municipal Railway System.
While serving the community is his primary incentive for being a crossing guard, Papia says, "Of course, the little remuneration I receive doesn't hurt because we've got inflation. I don't want to complain about inflation. I'm pulling my oar."

With a twinkle in his eye, he asks, "Hey, do you know why George Washington stood up in the boat crossing the Delaware? He knew, if he sat down, someone would give him an oar."
A car honks and Papia flicks up his detachable sunglasses to get a better look. A smile lights his face as he waves.
Then, out of the corner of an eye, he spies a small boy waiting patiently on the other side of the street. In a flash, he's by the boy's side.
Papia admits, "I love doing it. It gives me something to do and I love kids."
They obviously love him, too. Papia's voice softens as he describes the little gifts his young friends have given him — a Valentine, a candy cane and, once, a whole can of tennis balls.
"They're really something, those kids."
Then he's off with a string of them close at his heels, ushering them through a sea of shiny metal hulks.

Officer Dragged by Car in Melee

A South San Francisco policeman was dragged by a car while he and fellow officers battled a crowd of about 200 young people at a noisy party at 25 Wilms Ave. late Saturday and early Sunday, according to police reports.

Officers called to the scene met with hostility and thrown debris, they said, by some of the people reluctantly leaving when ordered to do so.

Officer John Grant, directing traffic away from the scene, ordered a car to stop. When it didn't, Grant reported, he leaned over to talk to the driver through the open window, but his arm was grabbed and held inside the car while the driver accelerated, he said.

Grant was dropped after being dragged approximately 50 feet, suffering cuts and bruises when he hit the pavement. He was treated at Kaiser Hospital for his injuries but not hospitalized.

Other officers promptly arrested the driver, Rick Joseph Bassillio, 18, 1107 1/2 Airport Blvd., South San Francisco, and booked him in the Daly City Jail on suspicion of felony assault on a police officer. A 17-year-old juvenile in the car was arrested, police said.

Four other juveniles also were arrested during the fracas.

One patrol car's back window was broken out during the commotion, police said.

In other events enjoyed by the seniors, Mrs. Marilyn Hertzberg of Quality Complete Nursing Service of San Mateo County came to last week's gathering to outline home nursing and health care available around the Bay Area, and on an outing to Reno and Sparks, 40 of the members had the opportunity to see the Glenn Campbell show and the MGM show, "Hello, Hollywood, Hello," at the new MGM Hotel. The weekend trip ended with a surprise birthday party for Clyde Schermeyer, the charter driver who has chauffeured club

AN OVERFLOW CROWD

More than 2,000 teachers packed the gymnasium at the College of San Mateo Thursday to hear speakers discuss school financing. The crowd was so large that it spilled out into the parking lot.

Overflow Rally Demands School

By KAREN PETTERSON

More than 2,000 public school teachers and administrators packed the gymnasium at College of San Mateo Thursday afternoon for a spirited rally demanding a long-term school finance plan.

Taking their cue from proponents of Proposition 13, which is responsible for much of the financial bind schools find themselves in today, organizers of the rally were determined to "send a message to Sacramento."

Local legislators who were on hand to receive the message included Assemblymen Louis Papan, D-Daly City, and Robert Naylor, R-Redwood City, state Sen. Marz Garcia, R-Menlo Park, and Maria Alcala, representing state Sen. John Foran, D-San Francisco.

The message the teachers want to send to the Legislature is one demanding salary increases and a long-term solution to the muddled school finance picture.

Representatives from every teacher association in the county jammed into the gym, carrying placards, stamping their feet and often breaking into loud applause during speeches by representatives of the California Teachers Association, which sponsored the rally.

There were 40 similar rallies being held at the same time throughout California.

Lois Schwartz Kelm, a teacher at South School in Hillsborough and chairman of the CTA Service Center Council, served as chairman of the rally.

"Schools cannot survive in a bailout situation," she said during a pre-rally conference with the legislators. "And people must realize that it's not just a teachers' problem. It affects the entire educational system."

Mrs. Kelm had no estimate on the number of teachers likely to be laid off in San Mateo County during upcoming budget planning by districts. Some districts have already sent out layoff notices, she said, but most are waiting until the March 15 deadline.

The need for a permanent school financing policy was echoed by other speakers during the afternoon.

County Superintendent of Schools William Jennings told the crowd that public schools "cannot settle for another bailout bill."

He took note of a school finance bill introduced by state Sen. Ralph Dills, D-Gardena, which outlines a continuing funding program including a block grant concept and annual adjustments for inflation. Jennings urged San Mateo County teachers' associations to get behind the bill, SB 234.

Marjorie Pitkin, a member of CTA's state council and the South San Francisco Classroom Teachers Association, called teachers, students and schools "the most obvious victims of Proposition 13."

She cited statistics showing California's per capita income as 11 percent above the national average. "And we still don't know how we're going to fund public education next year," she declared.

She called for an end to "bandaids and bailouts," and pushed for a long-term finance bill.

Miss Alcala reported that Foran had introduced a bill, SB 292, which would provide for one cent of the sales tax to be earmarked for public education.

"We see that as a permanent and reliable source of funding for K-12 education," she said.

Papan asked the assembled crowd to "bear with us" as the Legislature investigates all sources of revenue.

"We need more time to develop a budget," he said, noting that last year the Legislature had less than 30 days after passage of Prop. 13 to come up with a budget.

"San Mateo County schools may be facing more of a squeeze than California as a whole," said Naylor, "because of the impact of Serrano-Priest," the Supreme Court decision calling for equal spending levels among all California school districts.

Both Naylor and Papan pointed out that schools were the only public institutions already operating under the constraints of a spending limit imposed by SB 90, at the time Prop. 13 was passed.

"Proposition 13 was designed to cut the fat," said Naylor, "but schools had already been on a long-term diet."

Garcia said that while he would work toward a long-term finance plan for public education, he was skeptical that one could be passed this year.

"We are probably looking at one more year of bailout funding," he said.

Garcia drew loud applause when he said he favored returning the state money to local school districts "with no strings attached."

A three-member panel questioned the legislators on various aspects of school financing, including a spending limit based on enrollment rather than on average daily attendance. Papan was the only one strongly in favor of such a plan.

Yes, it makes good sense—and good cents, too—to save energy, which in turn saves money. A clean and properly-tuned furnace will mean more comfort for you and your family—and lowered heating bills. A leaky faucet can waste two gallons a day, while an improperly regulated water heater wastes energy and dollars every hour it is out of adjustment.

The experienced journeymen craftsmen who work for our union contractors install, repair and service plumbing and heating appliances. Or if it's a major remodeling or improvement job, which will enhance the value of your home—such as modernizing a kitchen or bathroom—then our members are qualified to help you with ideas, estimates and service.

Always the price will be fair (probably less than you think) and all work is guaranteed. Look for our name listed daily in the newspaper classified sections under "plumbing." In the telephone yellow pages, our listing is on page 766 in the San Mateo County Directory, and page 454 in the Palo Alto book. Or just keep a copy of this advertisement handy.

A First: 'Brisbane Village' Approved

Brisbane's first shopping center received a building permit from the city this week, and groundbreaking is scheduled for the end of the month.

Called Brisbane Village, it will be located adjacent to the Bank of America near the intersection of Bayshore Boulevard and Old County Road and will have space for 12 retail shops and a coffee shop on the street level and 12 offices on the second story.

It is expected to generate about $20,000 per year in sales tax revenues to the City of Brisbane.

Representing the developer, Alta California Properties, Inc. of San Mateo, Bernice Butcher said the complex is aimed at serving primarily Brisbane residents and persons working in the Crocker Industrial Park and will emphasize food concessions and services. It is scheduled to be completed by July.

She said one merchant, Carol Bahnsen, has signed a lease to operate another branch of the flower and gift shop that she currently runs in South San Francisco.

The shopping center will be built in the "town and country" style, featuring wood siding, a shingled roof and dormer windows. A 35-foot shingled sign tower at one end will read, "Brisbane Village." The architect is James W. Foug and Associates of Palo Alto.

Suspended Officer Fired in SSF

A South San Francisco policeman who has been the target of a statutory rape investigation has been fired, according to City Manager Walter Birkelo.

He said Thursday that the officer is being discharged for a "whole series" of violations. The city manager would not disclose the name of the officer or the nature of the charges.

All he would say is that the officer was fired for violating police department rules and regulations. His decision to fire the policeman can be appealed to the city Personnel Board within 15 days, and a hearing must be scheduled within 10 days after the appeal is made.

That hearing is open to the public unless the officer requests that it be closed.

The City Council did not participate formally in the decision to fire the officer, because their involvement was not required. The decision was the city manager's alone to make.

A spokesman for the city manager's office said the officer will not receive any severance pay. The officer has been on paid administrative leave for several weeks.

Police Chief James Datzman and Chris Burdick, the San Francisco attorney representing the policeman, were unavailable for comment Thursday.

Attempts to reach the officer also were unsuccessful.

However, the officer said several weeks ago that he was not sexually involved with a minor.

When he was notified two weeks ago that administrative action was going to be taken against him, the officer told this newspaper:

"It's hard for me to believe my employers have taken this form of action. I don't know how they could take it upon themselves to terminate me."

The 17-year-old South San Francisco girl who allegedly had a sexual relationship with the officer reportedly initially admitted to police that the two were involved.

But she changed her story and told the district attorney's office and this newspaper that she had lied to police.

She claimed she had lied because she was "confused."

William Larsen, chief deputy district attorney for the criminal division, completed his review of the case recently.

He has said statutory rape charges would not be filed against the officer. Larsen said it would be hard to convince a jury "beyond a reasonable doubt" of the officer's guilt if the alleged victim had changed her story.

An administrative hearing was held Monday with city officials, the officer and his attorney.

At that meeting, the officer was given an opportunity to respond to the charges against him.

The city manager then took the matter under consideration until Thursday morning, when he announced the officer would be dismissed.

"Nobody ever likes to make those kinds of decision," he said Thursday.

When Birkelo said two weeks ago that administrative action was pending against an officer, he said that once he had made a final decision about the case the officer's name would be released.

However, Birkelo has changed his mind.

He refused to release the man's name for "legal and other" reasons.

Fred Carelli, president of the South San Francisco Police Officer's Association, said he had no statement to make about the firing.

He said the officer has contacted the association about the investigation. If the officer requests it, Carelli said, free legal representation would be provided for him.

"All over America there is a revolution. Until recently girls played jacks, jump rope, or hopscotch. Now girls are wrestling, doing judo, riding rodeo, playing soccer, skateboarding, shooting pool, and driving motorcycles." With these words Karen Folger Jacobs introduces her book, "Girlsports" (Bantam, $1.50).

Ms. Jacobs presents 15 champions who tell what it is like to be the only girl on a boy's team; to compete against men, and to be regarded as too weak to play with male opponents or to be confined to positions where there is little action lest "I get hurt."

Speaking for many female athletes, Amy Love, the soccer star, writes "I think God made people even — not that girls are better than boys or that boys are better than girls. We're all equal. If girls want to play a sport, if they like playing it, they should be able to play it." With these words Amy Love sounds a "declaration of independence" that rings through the interviews of all 15 of the ladies with whom Jacobs spoke.

Each of the girls talks of her love for sports. Amy Barrie Beach said, "If I didn't rodeo, I'd probably do more stuff at school. I'd play volleyball and tennis for my high school. In the spring I do track and field. I run the hurdles and the medley relay, and I do the long jump and the high jump. It gets me strong for rodeo. It's fun, too."

In the same interview, Beach revealed that like most girls, she loves to dance and to date, but her desire to win over all contestants, male or female, and her love for excitement render her unable to be content with "girls' sports. It also dictates her choice in male companions."

"I hope to marry a good roper. I like guys who rope good. I'd never want to rope better than a boyfriend. I'd feel funny."

It is a desire to win at a difficult sport, not a desire to beat men, that motivates the female athletes. To serve this desire they are willing to practice, to work out in gymnasiums, to take direction from coaches.

As Dove Scherr, who learned and trained to play water polo as the only girl in a camp of 175 hard-playing, hard-training boys, said, "It was worth it! And a couple of girls are going out for water polo and I think they'll hang in there."

"It was worth it!" That seems to be the sentiments of all the female athletes. As the judo expert, Debbie Peru said, "It's hard for me, but it's worth it."

"Girlsports" is a dramatic book by girls that Jacobs calls remarkable. she writes, "And there are thousands like them all across the country. That's where the revolution is. These girls in 'Girlsports' have inspired me."

"They will inspire you, too."

Ram- blings

By STEVE KAUFMAN
Congratulations to the staff of the school newspaper, "The Rampage." They produced a superbly put together edition of the paper, covering a variety of stories. The issue was so well laid out that it was considered for entry in several state-wide newspaper contests.

The standings for this week toward the spirit trophy are: In first place, the senior class; second place, the junior class; third place, the freshman class; and fourth, the sophomore class.

The senior class has been keeping busy on the prom this semester, and some giant strides have been made. This event will be at the Galleria on Kansas Street in San Francisco.

One of the major steps in choosing an adequate site for the prom is finding a place which can meet its needs. The Galleria is just that. This four level building has its own sunken dance floor, a feature seldom seen in hotels. Each of the levels has its own tables, making it very easy for a group of students to assemble and socialize. The music can be heard throughout the levels. Built from a contemporary design, the building has one unique aspect-part of the roof opens up. If the weather permits, the roof will part, allowing students to dance under the warm glow of the evening stars and sky. "It's unlike anything I've ever seen before," commented Senior Class President Marisa Matteucci. "It's really neat. It has its own character and charisma. Actually, the whole building is so beautiful, it's undescrivable."

Another first planned for the prom is the selling of bids. It is customary for the male to keep the bid after the prom. However, this year the female will be presented with a complimentary bid, as well as each couple receiving two glasses with the prom theme, "We Both Deserve Each Other's Love," printed on them.

It was a rather solemn day last Thursday, as 65 members of the senior class left Westmoor as mid-term graduates. I would like to wish all of these people a happy and successful life and the best for the future.

Best of luck also to students entering new classes for the spring semester. Students began their new classes Monday.

Westmoor's yearbook is selling something unique thing-spaces in the book. These spaces are sold for $1 and give students a chance to say something to either their friends, faculty, or the school in general. There is, however, limited space, so anyone interested should contact Angela Rizzo, the yearbook editor, as soon as possible.

In an effort to defray the cost of Westmoor's yearbook, the staff is sending out letters to parents of the students of Westmoor asking for a $3.50 donation as patrons to the book. The amount may not seem like much, but to keep the cost of the book from increasing, every little bit counts. Those who contribute will have their names printed in the book as patrons. If a letter comes to you, please help this dedicated crew make yet another successful yearbook. Checks should be made out to Westmoor High School Yearbook and mailed to Westmoor High School, 131 Westmoor Ave., Daly City 94015, thanks for your support.

Good luck to the German club, now selling See's candy suckers to raise money for its many activities.

Five Westmoor students are going to Skyline College to solve some of the various problems associated with high school. This meeting will have as guests five representatives from each school in the district, who will attempt some solutions to some of the pressing situations high schools encounter today. The Westmoor delegates are Student Body President Angela Rizzo, Student Body Vice President Kris Tong;

One of the highlights of the senior year is Grad Night. This year it will be at Great America from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. The park is closed to the public during these hours and only students from Bay Area high schools are allowed in. Because of the small number of people in the park, shows, rides and attractions are relatively easy to get to.

There will be at least three bands playing all night, as well as a mobile disco. Also, if the student can overcome his or her shyness, he or she can have a picture taken with Bugs Bunny at no charge, if they provide the camera.

Imaginative Trip On a Clipper Ship

Welcome aboard THE MOONRAKER! This nautical restaurant, featuring continental cuisine, is one of three outstanding dining spots in the GUST family's complex at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Unfurl your white dinner napkin and use it to help imagine you're about to set sail on a Clipper ship of years ago. What you have unfurled was the topmost sail — the "moonraker" ... One of the most popular steak specialties at PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, is Phil's delicious Cling Peach Beef Wellington. If you're planning to enjoy dinner at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row" before catching a play at the Curran or Geary, be sure to save room for their luscious English Trifle dessert ... LOUIS FRUTSCHI, debonair owner of L'AUBERGE, was the recipient of much culinary praise from the board of directors of the San Mateo County Restaurant and Hotel Owners' Association, who recently enjoyed a luncheon meeting at the Redwood City French restaurant ... Any day becomes a special day when you drive to Moss Beach for the excellent German food featured at TILLIE'S LIL FRANKFURT. But some days can be even more special, such as Sunday, when TILLIE SCHOLTZ serves a huge Breakfast Special for only $2.50 and a Steak Dinner Special (for two) with a bottle of champagne for $15.

GALA CEREMONIES

An Evening of Fun Finocchio Policy

It is the policy of FINOCCHIO'S famed nightclub in San Francisco always to present first quality entertainment, and LORI SHANNON, comedienne extraordinaire, certainly lives up to that reputation. Shannon and the other Finocchio entertainers are dedicated to making your evening of fun one to long remember. Finocchio's is open five nights a week (closed Mondays and Thursdays) featuring four fun-filled shows each evening ... Seems those who "discover" the BAYHILL LOUNGE while shopping at Bayhill Shopping Center in San Bruno soon become "regulars." Whether it's for lunch, after-work libations or dancing to INDEED, the group that entertains from 9 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, you'll find this is a popular spot for socializing ... Nostalgia is a big thing these days, and you can find "instant nostalgia" in Burlingame just by dropping by BEARDSLEY'S, a well established landmark serving diners from 5:30 p.m. (bar opens at 4 p.m.), and offering large amounts of hospitality ... You can order just about anything you'd like in Chinese food just about any way you want it at GONG'S Chinese restaurant in South San Francisco. Owner/chef JOHN CHIANG offers take-out service, home delivery or complete catering ... Everything you desire in seafood and Italian food for lunch or dinner, plus convenient parking while enjoying it, could well be the motto of VINCE'S FRESH SEAFOOD DEPOT. All presided over with watchful care by Owner NINA LICATA and son TONY, general manager, whose legions of loyal patrons attest to their consistent high standards of quality and service.

Youngsters Love Pancake Griddle

Kids love the do-it-yourself pancake griddle on the all-you-can-eat Sunday brunch at the KING'S TABLE in Redwood City. Other treats include ham, sausages, scrambled eggs, chicken and complimentary champagne ... All well drinks served during "happy hour" (4:30 to 6 p.m.) Mondays through Fridays are only $1 at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S. Hot hors d'oeuvres are complimentary ... Carne Asada (beef steak with guacamole grilled in herbs, garnished with fried beans and Mexican rice) is just one of several specialties of the house at LA PINATA in downtown Burlingame ... DEAN LEHR'S gourmet exclusive at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco, a Maine Baby Lobster Tail dinner, is such a hit that Dean is holding it over this week. Dinner patrons get free admission to the adjoining LEHR'S CABARET DISCO and LEHR'S BOCCIA BALL Opera Room ... Mr. and Mrs. Bernardo Remedios of Daly City were first prize winners of SERRAMONTE JOE'S grand opening contest of a trip to Las Vegas for two, including accommodations at the Sands Hotel and $500 cash ... Rotarians who may be looking for a way to "make up" a meeting and indulge in super Italian or sea food at the same time can do it easily at ROMANO'S, Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. You'll be in good company, as the local Rotary Club meets here Tuesdays at 12:15 p.m. ... With all the current interest in China and everything Chinese, you can take a little lesson in Chinese calligraphy and enjoy good Chinese food at the same time by having lunch or dinner at KUM LO in downtown San Mateo (formerly the Golden Door). The menu gives Chinese characters with English translation ... New flash: The chicken who lays the eggs for the OMELETTE HOUSE in San Mateo has laid over 140,000 eggs in the last year, and is worn out, reports the management. To let her get a rest, the restaurant will be closed Feb. 5, 6 and 7 (actually, a little remodeling will take place). Reopening Feb. 8.

CURVY LADIES

Jill Stewart and Dianne Kahn are the beautiful as well as talented "Good Time Girls" in the spicy production, "Bordello," which can be seen in the Silver Dollar Showroom at Harolds Club.

Harolds Club Brings Back Good Old Days

Although they've all but disappeared from sight these days, those ornate and now rare machines known as nickelodeons will be coming back Feb. 15 when HAROLDS CLUB opens its $20 million expansion. The inside decor is 1905 Teddy Roosevelt Victorian, with brick archways, oak wood throughout and a mirror-like ceiling over the casino. If you hear a few choruses of "Yes Sir, That's My Baby" on the second or third floors, don't be startled. It only signals that someone has just dropped a couple of quarters into the nickelodeon ... "There's a certain similarity between the downward forearm motion of ski poles in cross country skiing and the pulling of the handle on a slot machine," said a fun-lovin' couple at BARNEY'S club-casino in South Lake Tahoe. They called it their "indoor training program" to strengthen the forearm. To top it off, they planned to enjoy the special 99 cent breakfast at Barney's or the nearby SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET.

The Active Elderly

By ARVILLE FINACOM

There's a fragility about the very old which lends a certain other-worldly luminosity to their features. Eyes twinkle, cheeks flush, life pulses visibly through veins in hands covered with transparent skin. From the depths of human awareness gained across decades of living comes wit, understanding, insight and a sense of what is truly important about life.

But this fragility which characterizes extreme age exacts a toll in physical ability. Eyesight deteriorates; hearing dulls. Physical function often is impaired by stroke or cardiac conditions. Bones — especially ankles, hips and legs — break easily and mend slowly. For many elderly, personal self-care becomes difficult and, as they fight to maintain self-identity and independence, they become increasingly depressed.

Until last spring the only alternative available was convalescent hospital placement, an often unsatisfactory situation for those whose minds and spirits still soar abroad in the world, who want to be a continuing, functioning part of the community around them, prevented solely by a body slowed beyond their total understanding and acceptance.

Perspective

Then, last April, Peninsula Hospital and Medical Center in Burlingame began a program unlike any other offered in the Bay Area. In fact, the only other similar group senior day care center in the United States catering to the social, medical and emotional needs of the whole elderly person is at Duke University in North Carolina.

In the nine months since, some 100 referrals have been processed. About a quarter have entered the program. Currently 16 people, ranging in age between 57 and 94, come two days a week. Another group has begun recently on a different two-day schedule.

To find specifics, I talked with Jacqueline Meyer, RN, senior day center coordinator. Ms. Meyer brings a wealth of warmth and understanding as well as a varied experiential background to her job. Born and raised in Canada — she received her nursing degree there and worked in psychiatric nursing with adolescents and youth — she spent a year in France before coming to California, where she re-entered medical nursing. Following several years to an intensive care unit, she became a nursing supervisor for four years and also did part-time paid nursing in a convalescent hospital.

When she heard about Peninsula Hospital's program, she felt her scope of skills suited her for the position. Besides, as she puts it, "I've always enjoyed older people and feel well-qualified to bring all my experience to bear in working with the total person." Ms. Meyer was hired in July 1978.

Perhaps the most rewarding part of her job is the patients' gratitude. She sees her position as one by which she helps the elderly "maintain and improve function-preventing decline. I assist people in doing what they want." If they succeed in their desire to maintain themselves outside a convalescent hospital setting, Ms. Meyer is gratified especially.

How exactly does the center operate? As mentioned earlier, acceptance follows referral, usually by a physician, of a person who seems to be sinking slowly into life-threatening depression. Such a person typically lives alone, has few close friends, doesn't get out much, often eats poorly, and may be in declining health, but doesn't want to be a burden on family, friends, or society.

Following referral, Ms. Meyer does an extensive assessment, exploring with the doctor and with the person referred as well as with his or her family and friends' financial, social, medical and emotional history. She is interested especially in what the person was like before the period of depression and what they still would like to do with their lives.

Once enrolled, participants come two days each week to the center on Trousdale Drive. The day begins with coffee and socializing followed by a brief period of exercise and movement tailored to individual needs. A period of group discussion follows, aimed at helping each one come to grips with the realities everyday existence presents. These periods of group discussion help participants express and confront their inner selves through reminiscences and life review discussions. Expression also has taken the form of collage construction and haiku composition, examples of which are on display in the group meeting room.

In the afternoon there is a variety of activities. Currently Ms. Meyer, whose avocation is pottery, is teaching the craft. Afternoon is a time for outings, too. Participants visited the San Mateo County Historical Museum at the College of San Mateo, the Sunset gardens in Menlo Park and even went to the San Mateo County Fair.

I asked Ms. Meyer if the Senior Day Center is an "end-of-the-line" facility. "No," she replied. It's the program's aim to help people through perhaps a three-to six-month period to regain the confidence they need to function on their own. "We do offer long term support occasionally," she continued. But, pointing to a mark of the program's success, Ms. Meyer told about one "graduate" who now confidently participates in community senior center affairs and also has become a community volunteer for a local health agency.

What does the future hold for the program? Beyond projected expansion to include more participants, Ms. Meyer envisions an active volunteer corps. Currently she is assisted by a mental health worker, a part-time occupational therapist and two student nurses on a rotating basis.

Ms. Meyer also would like to begin group sessions for those who would like to talk about retirement issues, the loss of a spouse or just the prospect of growing old. Ms. Meyer hopes, too, to set up an evening group for the children and other relatives of the elderly, a time to share comments and concerns. She is available and will speak about the program to anyone interested. Call her at 697-4061, ext. 214.

Cost of Expanding Oyster Climbs $4 Million

HARBOR MASTER'S VIEW

Swede Hansen, harbor master of the Oyster Point Marina, surveys the new breakwater. Construction of this breakwater cost $1 million more than initial estimates.

(Dave Dornias Photos)

By HEIDI VAN ZANT

The price tag on expanding the Oyster Point Marina in South San Francisco has increased by $4 million since preliminary cost estimates were made in 1977.

Expansion and improvements are estimated to cost $11.08 million, according to Ron McClellan, manager of the San Mateo County Harbor District, and marina manager Swede Hansen.

They said cost estimates have risen so drastically through inflation and because portions of the project were much more expensive than first thought.

"It's typical of what's happening to large-scale construction projects," McClellan said this week. "But we're not having (financial) troubles."

According to McClellan, enough money is available to complete all phases of the project if the Harbor District contributes $2 million more than it had planned to.

About $5 million already has been spent on engineering costs, construction of a new breakwater and leachate control.

Oyster Point is built on a former garbage dump and under court order work was done to prevent the fill from seeping into the bay.

Another $700,000 from Harbor District funds is being spent on extending the present breakwater.

An additional $6 million will be needed to complete the other phases of the expansion, McClellan said.

When finished, the berthing capacity of the marina will be doubled to about 600 slips, boating facilities will be expanded and recreational facilities improved.

When the financing package for the marina expansion was put together several years ago, McClellan said, costs were to be covered by a $6 million loan from the state, federal and state grants and a $700,000 allocation from the Harbor District.

But because the cost of the work already completed has been several million more dollars than expected, McClellan said, the Harbor District may have to increase its allocation to $2.7 million.

Harbor District commissioners are meeting Feb. 7 to discuss the project.

If the commission does not want to spend the bulk of its reserves on completing the Oyster Point Marina, McClellan said, perhaps the project could be re-scaled.

He said it is important that the initial phases of the project be completed. Then the district can go ahead with plans to lease out part of the boating and restaurant facilities.

Private developers will be responsible for construction of two restaurants, a shopping arcade, coffee shop and chandlery.

Construction drawings are being prepared for completing the roads, parking areas and utilities, for construction of a new harbor master's office, restrooms and 320 new slips.

McClellan said preliminary estimates in 1977 showed $7.2 million would be needed to complete expansion of the Oyster Point Marina.

A year later, those estimates had risen to $9.6 million, and he said his most recent estimates show that cost now to be $11.08 million.

"One of the big reasons for that (increase) is that Water Quality Control got involved," said McClellan.

In 1974, he said, it was estimated that it would cost $900,000 to dredge the bay, put a clay cap on the site and control leachate seepage into the bay.

Spending Limited to $200

All five members of the San Bruno City Council, plus two elected staff members, have filed off-year campaign statements indicating not more than $200 was received nor expended to support their candidacies during the last six months of 1978.

The seven elected San Bruno officials filing the "short form," indicating they received less than $200, were Mayor Dick Griffith, Vice Mayor Tom Ricci, Councilmen Doug Dawkins, John Barnard and Gary Mondfrans, City Clerk Terri Rasmussen and City Treasurer Ruth Krumm.

In addition, three members of the council, Griffith, Mondfrans and Dawkins, filed statements of economic interest, indicating they have no reportable outside financial interests that could influence their voting.

Ricci said he has more than $10,000, but less than $100,000 worth of common stock in PG&E, his employer.

Barnard said he has less than $10,000 worth of common stock in the State Farm Investment Fund, and listed a number of either full or part-interest ownerships of properties throughout the state.

Barnard said he is either full or part owner of properties at 482 San Bruno Ave., 814 Green Ave., 818 Green Ave., 728 Easton Ave., and parcels in La Honda and Lake County. He also listed rental income from some of the properties.

Jackler Gets 1st Promotion

Jill J. Jackler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Leibowitz, 27 Parkside Ave., Daly City, has received her first promotion in the U.S. Air Force.

Jackler, promoted to airman, is assigned at Mountain Home AFB, Idaho, where she is a mental health clinic specialist with a unit of the Tactical Air Command.

Actual cost of those phases of the project was $2.5 million, McClellan said.

"Until you really get in and start moving the garbage around," he said, "you really don't know."

Building a new cement breakwater also has cost $1 million more than first estimated. He said actual cost was about $1.5 million.

"Everything that we've done has come in over estimate," said Hansen, who is harbor master of the marina.

"Delay is the key word in the whole thing, he explained.

Not only has inflation driven costs up, he said, but when the breakwater was built a cement shortage caused construction costs to escalate sharply.

"We'll ultimately build the whole thing as it's planned," said McClellan, pointing out that completion of the parks and open spaces phases "will just come along a little bit later" than expected.

The plans show that more than one-half of the marina is set aside for recreational uses, which will include an expanded swimming area, bicycle trails, a fishing pier and picnic areas, Hansen has said.

Harbor District commissioners discussed the financial aspects of the Oyster Point Marina at a recent study session, McClellan said, and asked him to look at other funding sources.

If the district uses its reserves to complete Oyster Point, he said, there will not be as much money available for the planned expansion of the Pillar Point Marina.

"We want the commission to deal with this philosophical question," McClellan said.

Should the commission decide not to use its reserves, he said, completion of the project could be phased differently, so income from the restaurant and shopping leases could be used to finish the project.

"There wouldn't have been any problem if Proposition 13 hadn't passed," he said, explaining that the district used to collect $1.3 million annually in tax revenues but its taxing capacity has been reduced to $500,000 a year.

Jeff Tips Regents

By PAUL SALVONI

Old West shootouts couldn't have been any more entertaining.

Thursday night's North Peninsula League clash between Jefferson High and visiting Serramonte offered an exciting display of run-and-gun basketball. For most of the game there was little to choose between the two teams. Eventually, though, Jeff wore down the undermanned Regents and lifted its NPL record to 11-0 with an 82-78 victory.

Jeff, which clinched a tie for the NPL title, is now 16-3 overall. Serramonte slipped to 6-5 in NPL play and 10-10 overall.

As expected, Jeff got a brilliant all-around game from do-everything guard Darryl Jackson, who hit nine of 15 shots from the floor, went 6-for-6 from the free throw stripe in the fourth quarter and finished with 30 points. Also as expected, Serramonte got a great all-around effort from forward Ricky Mixon, who canned 28 points (amid rumors that he might not be eligible for the final game of the season).

What made the difference was Jeff's superior depth. Serramonte was missing two players who ordinarily see a fair amount of playing time: point guard Joe Nobles and frontliner Mike Kuchac. The Regents' starting five was forced to play virtually the entire contest.

The Indians, in contrast, got a great effort from reserve forward Ken Mackey, who went 9-for-17 from the floor for 18 points — and got 10 of those in the final quarter, when Jeff outscored the Regents 29-21.

"He (Jeff Coach Bud Bresnahan) told us to just keep running," said

Indian guard Bob Oller, who went 7-for-14 from the floor and finished with 16 points. "He told us we could probably wear 'em down."

"They had to go almost all the way with five players, and that's awfully tough," said Bresnahan. "I knew that if we kept pressing them (Jeff employed a full court press much of the way — particularly in the fourth quarter), there's always a stretch, even if it lasts only a minute or a minute and a half, when the press will force a few successive turnovers."

That happened early in the last quarter — and it was fatigue (on the Regent's part) that caused that.

Serramonte led 57-53 after three periods, but turned the ball over twice during the first 1:17 of the last quarter, and both turnovers resulted in Jeff baskets. Oller made a steal and connected for a three-point play with 6:43 remaining, giving the Indians a 62-58 edge.

Jeff pulled away to a couple of eight-point leads midway through the period, the second coming when Jackson hit two free throws for 72-64, but the gutty Regents, playing their hearts out, refused to fold.

With 0:49 left, Mixon tossed in a 15-foot jumper from the left side, trimming Jeff's lead to 78-76, with 0:27 remaining. Jeff missed two free throws (the Indians had also missed two foul shots 31 seconds earlier). Serramonte still had a chance when that second miss caromed off the rim — all the Regents had to do was grab the rebound.

No such luck for Serramonte — which, ironically, had rebounded extremely well most of the night. Jeff's Mackey snared the rebound from his secondary position in the lane and banked the ball in, giving the Indians an 80-76 lead.

The Regents' fate was sealed when Serramonte missed the front end of a crucial one-and-one opportunity at the foul line with 0:18 left and Jeff center Reggie Camp hauled down the rebound.

"For a long time, we weren't getting back on defense and they were fast-breaking us," said Jackson. "but we got more running opportunities ourselves in the fourth quarter. They tried — they really played a good game. But we feel we'll beat anybody in a running game."

Bresnahan had words of praise for Mixon.

"He's really a fine player — he's the best shooter this league has seen in a long time," said Bresnahan. "I think he's matured quite a bit this year. He came into our locker room and shook hands with us after we'd beaten them at Serramonte. He's gonna make a fine college player — he's just coming into the other phases of the game (aside from shooting), and I envy any college coach who gets him."

SAN JOSE — College of San Mateo, Skyline and Canada have each placed one wrestler in the California State Championship Tournament, which will be staged Thursday through Saturday at El Camino in Los Angeles.

CSM's Gary Bocci (126's), Skyline heavyweight Bob AhSue and Canada's Marshall Newsom (190's) each placed in the top four spots in their weight divisions in Friday's Northern California Tournament at San Jose City College, thus qualifying for next weekend's state tournament.

On the team level, CSM placed fifth behind NorCal champion Chabot, Diablo Valley, San Jose and West Valley.

Westmoor Outguns Tigers

By MIKE FICHER

Terra Nova High basketball coach Gary Johnson shook his head in disbelief.

"You have to give Westmoor credit. How do you beat a team that shoots like they did today?" Johnson asked.

The answer — as Johnson and the Tigers discovered Thursday — is you usually do not.

With all five Ram starters displaying a deft shooting touch, Westmoor shot an incredible 69 percent from the field to overcome a stubborn Terra Nova squad 72-65 in a North Peninsula League game.

"This was one of our best games of the season. Everything, especially the outside shots, was going in for us," Westmoor Coach Tony Giammona said.

The Rams, who are now 8-3 in NPL competition, connected on six jump shots in staking a 20-10 first-quarter lead. What the Rams or the Tigers missed, Westmoor center Sheldon Scott, the game's leading rebounder with 14, grabbed to follow in, trigger a fast break with a board, or set up a teammate for a basket with a pass.

"That first quarter killed us," Johnson noted. "We might have won the game if Westmoor had not shot so well."

The Tigers stayed close throughout the contest, except for a Westmoor burst early in the fourth quarter which gave the Rams a 21-point lead. However, Terra Nova, utilizing a full-court press and some excellent shooting of their own (Tigers shot over 50 percent in the game), fought back to within seven points with a little over two minutes remaining, but could close no further.

Guard Derrick Johnson led the balanced Westmoor offense with 18 points. Forward Troy Williams added 17 with Scott and forward Tony Limutau chipping in 14 and 12 points, respectively.

"Terra Nova's pretty tough and strong, but I think the quickness of our team made the difference in the game," said Scott.

Showing respect for the explosive Westmoor fast break offense, TN elected to drop back on defense rather than go to the offensive boards. This enabled the Rams to outbounce the Tigers 34-19.

Forward Rich Belli led Terra Nova with 20 points. Guard Greg Miles added 17 with the center Mike Pedro contributing 12. TN is now 6-5 and in fourth place in the NPL.

Sharks Beat SSF in OT

By CHUCK BUSTILLOS

Oceanside High's basketball team has been in a slump. In recent contests, once the Sharks fell behind, they stiffened up and just sank.

Thursday night Oceanside broke out of that slump in fine fashion, overcoming a 10-point fourth quarter deficit to edge South San Francisco High 63-59 in overtime, and keeping its slim North Peninsula League playoff hopes alive.

The win upheld Oceanside's NPL mark to 5-6, while South City dropped to 3-7.

"Patience was the key. Craig (Jamerson) really helped us before he fouled out. He hit some pretty crucial free throws. I think we can make the playoffs if we win two out of our next three games," Oceanside Coach Don Novitzky commented.

It didn't look like South City's George Nualiku was going to let the visiting Sharks get close. The husky center maneuvered inside and muscled up for 10 third-quarter points, mostly on lay-ins. He keyed a furious South City barrage which saw the Warriors run up their lead to 47-37 after three quarters.

Oceanside capitalized on SSF's overly-aggressive play, which resulted in numerous backcourt Warrior fouls. Jamerson dropped in five charity shots, the fifth cutting South City's lead to three at 51-48 with 4:40 left in the final period.

Steve Rice's fallaway top-of-the-key swish tied the game at 54 with 3:23 left. Each squad answered the other's score until South City's poor shot at the buzzer bounced off the back rim and sent the game into overtime.

Oceanside: Rice 3-3 5 9, Page 7-3 16, Clayton 5-3 4 13, Jamerson 5-7 12 17, Whipple 0-0 0 6, Barnes 1-0 0 2 Totals: 23-15-24 63

Giants in NL East Could Be Champs

Nick Peters, writing recently in the Sporting News, proved with statistics what I claimed last year — that had the Giants been in the eastern division of the National League, they very well might have won the pennant.

The Giants' last season had the best inter-division record in all the major leagues, with a 47-25 (.653 percentage) record.

Other interesting Giants stats showed that while Jack Clark led the team in game-winning hits (10), that part-timer Mike Ivie was actually per capita, so to speak, the best clutch hitter. Big Mike hit .349 with runners on base, .273 with nobody on.

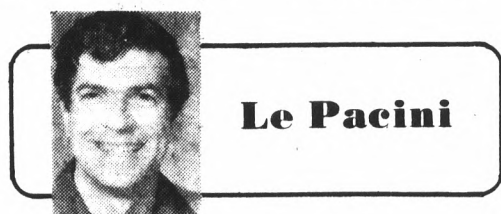

Surprisingly, weak-hitting shortstop Roger Metzger hit .329 with ducks on the pond, as they used to say, but only .222 with nobody on.

For those who think the Giants need another good bat in the lineup (I'm one of them) to contend in the NL West in 1979, maybe they'll be getting the equivalent of one more good bat without having to acquire a player.

The Giants, as you know, are switching to natural turf this season. For years it's been assumed that artificial surface just naturally raises batting averages. Thus, it's been assumed by some of the purists that the Giants would suffer even more from lack of hitting.

But hold, purists. Last year the Giants hit .274 on natural grass, and only .239 on the make-believe stuff. As a matter of fact, nine of the NL clubs hit better on grass, and as a whole, the batting average on grass in the NL was .260 as opposed to .249 on artificial turf. Five of the seven teams in the NL who play on the funny stuff hit better on the road, when they were cavorting on the genuine stuff.

Comment on Lindsey Nelson, the new Giants' number one play-by-play man: He's no Lon Simmons and he wears terrible sport coats, but the Giants could have done a lot worse. He's considered one of the best in the business, so doesn't come cheap. Thus, if nothing else, his acquisition proves that KNBR, the new Giants radio station, is planning to go first class, as the Giants themselves have since Bob Lurie saved the day.

Le Pacini

An interesting, possibly surprising, Giants stat that didn't fit into the recent column on interesting and surprising Giants stats: Darrell Evans' fielding average wasn't fancy (.952 in comparison to third base leader Ken Reitz' .973), but he led the NL in putouts and assists, and only Golden Glover Mike Schmidt and Reitz participated in more double plays.

National League President Chub Feeney, commenting on inter-league play: "My feeling is that it might work for a while, but what do you do for an encore?"

If Feeney was quoted right, that has to be the most stupid statement on almost any subject ever uttered by a major executive of any business.

According to Feeney's logic, no game of any sport should ever be played, because what would you do for an encore? It would just be repetitive, right?

Wondering what will happen in the next game, is, of course, the fascination of all sports. That's why sports are so much better than almost any dramatic program on television, in the movies or on the stage, because you don't know in advance what will happen.

In sports, villains do sometimes win, heroes do often lose, the plots aren't always perfect, the scenes don't always peak at the commercial break, nor do the contests end in exactly 60 minutes, just in time for the next program.

Interesting notes on the Hall of Fame. Nearly two-thirds of its members were at their peaks before 1930, while the years 1920-29 produced the most enshrined players, 33. The next decade was the one immediately following, which produced 28 players. Third best decade was 1900-1909, which sent 22 players to the Hall.

The weakest decade was the 40s (seven), but that's understandable, because much of that decade was eaten up by World War II, when, undoubtedly, some possible future Famers had their careers cut short because of military service. The worst decade with no excuse is 1960-69, out of which emerged (so far) only three. But more players from that era still could be named easily.

Third base has the fewest members, with only eight players chosen from that position, though there have been only nine second basemen picked. Pitchers dominate the Hall, with 47 selections, with first basemen next, at 18.

New York state has produced the most Hall of Fame native sons, with 20, Pennsylvania next with 14. California has sent 10 men, with our state tied for sixth with Indiana behind New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Massachusetts.

I'm tired of hearing about Kenny Stabler's "lifestyle" and I don't care about it, anyway. If he's a hedonist, that's his conscience's business, and if he's a framer, that's the business of the courts. What we're talking about here is a quarterback, and none of the above is relevant unless it has affected his play, in which case he has perpetrated fraud on the public, who paid a lot of money to see him lose a lot more than usual last season. But it hasn't been proven that Stabler's "lifestyle" has caused him to perpetrate any such fraud.

Despite the prominence given quarterbacks by the press, the fact remains that a quarterback's "year" is more reflective of his team's "year" than vice-versa. The Raiders had for them a below par year. Yet they still were a winning team. Stabler had, for him, a below ar year, yet by any standards he still had a better year than the average NFL quarterback.

Now the jackals want to get rid of him. Good. I hope Oakland returns the favor we did them when we shipped Jim Plunkett across the Bay.

The 49ers would be getting a quarterbacak who still has the best lifetime passing completion percentage in the history of pro football, a 59.92. And who is fourth best in history on yards per pass attempt (7.94), behind only Otto Graham (8.98), Syd Luckman (8.86) and Norm Van Brocklin (8.16).

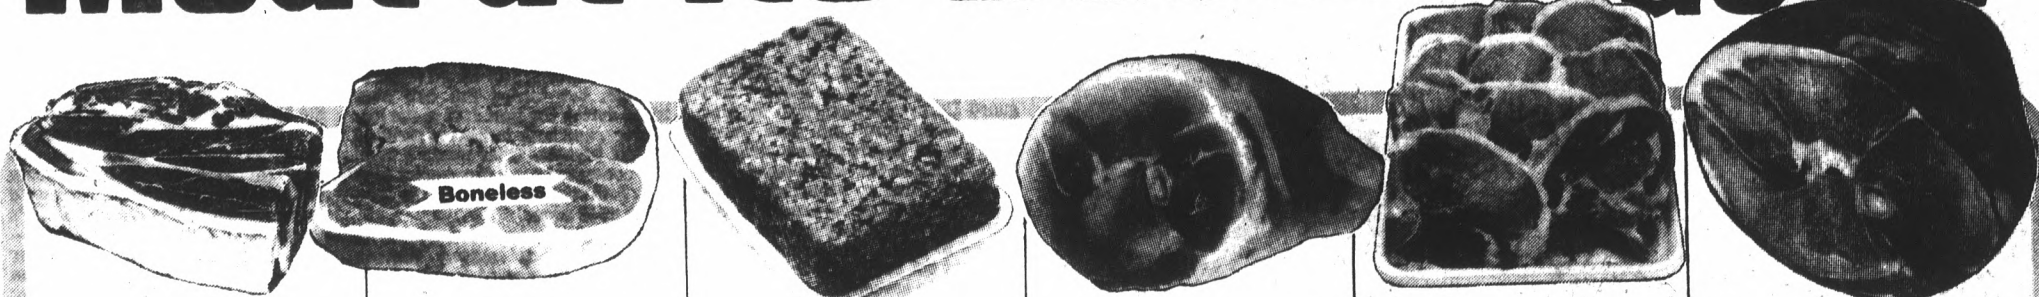

About those interceptions this past year, Stabler always has had somewhat more of a tendency than other top QBs to throw them, but nobody thought much about it when the Raiders were winning big. It became a "detriment" only when the Raiders became somewhat better than average rather than outstanding. At that, Stabler still stands 33rd in interceptions on a list of the all-time top 61 passers in NFL history, certainly not bad when you consider all the outstanding QBs the NFL has produced.

Finally, Stabler is ranked fourth in all-time passing effectiveness behind only Graham, Lenny Dawson, and Sonny Jurgenson.

While Graham still clings to the top of the list of passing effectiveness, another old-time Browne from the All-American Conference days still holds a life-time record. Marion Motley, the prototype pro fullback, has the best rushing average with a 5.7. And although he and Graham practically invented the draw play, he still got most of those yards on smashes up the middle, when the other team was looking for it.

The Serramonte High School freshman class in selling See's candy sticks for five cents. Get them while they last.

Wrestling is back at Serramonte. Last year there was no team because a coach wasn't available. This year's wrestling team is looking forward to a great season. Members are Pat Lindstrom, Kevin Goodwin, Tim Kuchac, Joe Cape, Angelo Hernandez, Jeff Caparro, Adam Zulinski, Nino Hernandez, Kim-successful season.

Here are Serramonte's mid-term graduates: Engelbert Abellana, Dennis Anchondo, Laura Anderson, Edward Ballardo, Patricia Cipriano, Jeff DeLeon, Diane Fenech, Michael Ferrez.

Animal Forum Weak Older Dogs

By D. R. BARNETT, DVM

QUESTION: During many years of owning dogs (large ones) I have had two or three that developed weak hind legs in their old age. I was told that this was due to deterioration of the nerve connected to the muscle. I remember right. However, I never did ask if there was any way to prevent this from happening, by giving the dog vitamins or doing something during his middle years to keep his legs strong. My dogs always have a big yard and all the exercise they wanted. Is there any answer to this problem?

ANSWER: Weakness in the rear legs is very common in large dogs as they get older. To my knowledge there is no medication that will prevent this. The dog should be fed a good diet, receive adequate exercise and not allowed to become overweight. If these three factors are constant you have fulfilled your obligation in general terms. Individual cases may respond to geriatric vitamin supplements, arthritis medicine, etc. Each case must be examined individually, diagnosed and medicated if there is a medication that will be helpful. Unfortunately, in many cases this weakness is a normal aging problem and there is nothing that can be done to reverse it.

QUESTION: I have a three-year-old spayed female Irish Setter who is allergic to fleas. She is currently on 5 mg Pred No. 35 to control the itching. Before she was on the pills, she scratched her skin near the hind quarters and the tail and lost all her hair. Now it doesn't seem to be growing back and she is losing more hair in that area. Is there anything I can give her to make that hair grow back?

ANSWER: Brewer's yeast is moderately effective in discouraging fleas if given on regular basis and at a fairly high dosage. The loss of hair probably is due to a hormonal imbalance plus the flea allergy. These problems are frustrating to treat and difficult to correct. Any skin problem responds slowly to treatment and if there is a continued irritation from fleas during the treatment period, naturally everything slows down. If there is one bit of advice that I can safely give in a column such as this (without examining the animal) it would be to control the fleas. In the Bay Area fleas are responsible for the vast majority of skin problems, so consult your veterinarian concerning your dog's problem and get his advice on flea control.

It's SAFEWAY for

A Safeway service in support of suggestions from the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs

INFLATION FIGHTING ideas

"No Matter How You Slice It, It's Cheaper if You Slice It."

The U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs reminds us that pre-sliced and pre-cut meats, cheeses, poultry and fish are usually more expensive than these same items are in their "solid" form. Whole chickens, for example, cost significantly less per pound than cut-up chickens. Chunk bologna and other cold cuts cost less by the piece than sliced.

Safeway's new Bulk Beef program is another example of how we can all do things ourselves to fight inflation. In this program, we offer large or "bulk" packages of boneless USDA Choice beef, consisting of sub-primal cuts which can then be cut and trimmed into retail cuts. You then individually wrap the cuts the way you want them for your home freezer.

Because of our lower costs in labor and materials, we are able to offer these bulk packages to you at a saving. Expert Safeway meat cutters will be glad to give you advice and assistance on how to get the most out of your sub-primal cuts.

Next week's Inflation Fighting Idea: "CHECK OUT RAIN CHECKS."

together, we can be INFLATION FIGHTERS!

The Indian

For those of you who saw several hundred runners going through the East-moor district last Sunday, you were the viewers of the first annual "Daly City West Side Run." This fund-raiser was sponsored by the Jefferson chapter of the California Scholarship Federation.

The idea for the race came from senior Ralph Gowen. The usual methods of raising money were overworked and an original was needed. Al Sinor, CSF advisor, was very pleased and surprised with the turn out, and hopes to add several activities to club's agenda as a result of the money earned.

Student body elections were run recently and the new officers intalled this week of the new semester. The officers are: President, Bill Nicolay; vice president Gary Floppiano; treasurer, Angelita Pronio; secretary, Lily Dumiao; club commissioner, Jerry Becerra; press relations, Maritza Gutierrez; and rally committee, Terry Garon.

Among Nicolay's plans for the coming semester are to develop a closer tie between students and student government, to make Jefferson a more lively place and make student government more active in pertinent problems. Congratulations to him and all other officers who are offered by the school, along with hope that the new blood is what Jeff needs.

treasurer, Alex Hong.

Freshmen — President, Jackie Grant; vice president Kim Evanson, secretary, Marlene Murcia; treasurer, Michelle Velez.

Jeff had an assembly Jan. 25, featuring Mrs. Fisher's second and third period dance classes. They did a routine consisting of 60 girls dancing to the beat of "Flashlight." The routine involved chain reactions and well-practiced dance steps.

After that, talented Una Simmers did a toe dance to "Feelings."

Jefferson's February grads are: Susan Biteng Alberto, Maria Corazon Coloma, Aiejo, Laura Louise Allen, Sharon L. Banta, Alice Mary Bodin, Luz Bocanegra, Maria Cristina Cento Buntan, Veronica Joyce Carter, Nestor Orlando Castillo, Cynthia Lynn DeVita, Ernesto Alberto Galvez, Rosario Hernandez, Patricia Guadalupe Jerez, Diana Lynn Klassen, Dan Lau.

Drew William Lawrence, Lydia Lee, Hecto Felipe Lopez, Anita Loretta Milligan, Marina Elizabeth Quintanilla, Marion L. Radzinski, Cristie Rovira, Irma Lucrecia Sanchez, Phyllis Carol Shearer, Corletta C. Simmonds, Frances Stevens, Rodney Taylor.

Another person to be leaving is Gary Leahy, head of Jeff's social studies department, who will leave for a five-month sabbatical to the Far East and Europe this month and will return at the end of July.

Leahy will travel with Lionel Clary, a teacher at Terra Nova, and they will spend time in Hong Kong, the Philippine Islands, Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia, Sicily, Spain, England, Ireland (to visit relatives), Egypt, and a month in India. They will travel by air on an around-the-world flight ticket and will travel to the local towns on trains, buses and camels.

Lillo Returns From Patrol

Coast Guard Fireman Machinery Technician Raymond B. Lillo, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Lillo, 331 Santa Barbara, Daly City, recently returned from an Alaskan fisheries patrol in the North Pacific Ocean. He is assigned to the Coast Guard cutter Rush, homeported in Alameda.

During the two-month patrol, the Rush embarked an observer from the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) who conducted vital marine research concerning the migration patterns of certain species of mammals; and an NMFS enforcement agent who observed numerous boardings of foreign fishing vessels by personnel of the Rush. Additionally, the Rush assisted National Data Buoy Office technicians in repairing environmental data buoys that report useful weather information. Surveillance Operations also were conducted to enforce international treaties and U.S. Laws, including the 200-mile fisheries conservation zone.
